

The Four Girls of Sydonia

By Alex Janis

There were four girls who knew each other from Girl Scouts. Their names were Alex, A.J., Madison and Alice. Alex was the youngest, A.J. and Maddie were in the middle and Alice was the eldest.

They went into the scariest house on the block. They heard an eerie thump. "What was that A.J.?" asked Alex. "I don't know," replied A.J. "Hey, I dare you to go up there Alice," said Maddie. "Sure," replied Alice.

She crept up the stairs making a creak with each step. When she got to the top she saw a gigantic spider! She ran for it and made it half way down the stairs before the spider snapped her in two with pincers! Alex fled at the sight of her friend being eaten.

There were only two girls left in the house. Then they heard a blood-curdling howl, a werewolf was sprinting down the stairs! They had to split-up. Sadly, Maddie tripped and was eaten. She came back as a ghost because her last thought was of saving her friend. She went to find A.J. so they could get out of the house.

It was two hours before she found her. She had been eaten by a carnivorous snake! Maddie thought if she could get her home it would be okay. Sadly, the snake had unleashed its poisonous venom on A.J. and she, like Alice, was dead.

When Maddie got home her parents screamed! Maddie explained what had happened and they understood every word. Her friends at school did too.

A.J. and Alice were never seen again.

The End.
