

The Disappearance

It all started one morning, but this was not like any other. Daisy was on her email. Then a strange email came in. It wasn't like any other. Now Daisy wasn't a big fan of chain-letter emails. The email read, "Once you open this email you are cursed. You read this to the end and do what it says. I'm Ben and I'm dead. I have no eyes and a bloody face. I go around sending this email. You better send this to 15 people and if you don't, well, I'll show you with three examples.

Jenna 14, from WI

Jenna hates chain letter emails. She got this email and thought it was fake. What a bad mistake! She deleted it. The next morning she was nowhere to be found. She is now having fun with her passed away family.

Valerie, 16, from SD

Valerie got this email and sent it to only 7 people. That night while she was brushing her teeth, she saw Bloody Mary in the mirror. That was the biggest fright of her life.

Robert, 20, from AZ

Now Robert was the smart one. He sent this to 20 people, just in case. That afternoon he found $100 bill on the ground. After a lunch with his girlfriend she said yes to his marriage proposal and now they have two beautiful children.

Now Daisy was freaked out! She deleted it. Big mistake. That night she was up very late. She saw something out her window at about midnight while watching TV. She saw it again. She blinked and it was in front of her. It said, "Just be calm and this won't hurt a bit." She was freaked! She screamed and now she is having a great time with her dead little sister in heaven. So watch out when you get this email.
